MISSOULA, Mont.--

A traveling exhibit entitled "Indian Pride on the Move" will be open to the public without charge Monday through Wednesday, Sept. 27-29, in Moab, Utah.

The display, housed in a 40-ft. trailer, will be open from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. each of the three days. Included in the exhibit are 110 historically valuable Indian artworks. The exhibit is being presented in various communities across the nation under the sponsorship of the National Park Service in cooperation with the University of Montana, Missoula.

Dr. Joel H. Bernstein, associate professor of art history at UM, is director, and Glenda Clay Bradshaw, Missoula, is associate director of the project.

Items included in the display, which date from about 1850 to 1925, were never seen in public until the exhibit was dedicated in Washington, D.C., on July 12, 1976, Bernstein said.

The traveling display, which is from the David T. Vernon Collection of Native American Arts, includes moccasins and leggings, smoking pipes, blankets, bear claw necklaces, pouches and bags, and spoons and ladles. Vernon is said to have established his collection during his lifetime by collecting items from the plains, woodlands and plateau regions of the U.S.
